

National Capital Society of American Foresters

DC Forester January 2008

Chair's Corner Good-by 2007, Hello 2008!

I am honored, humbled, and excited to serve as your chair for 2008. Honored that you have placed your trust in me to continue the great work of NCSAF, humbled because so many of you have so much wisdom and experience that you have gained at the national level and in the outlying “shadows” of the nation’s Capital, and excited because of the many new challenges and opportunities that are likely to present themselves this year.

My tenure in Washington DC has not been that long. I was loaned by the Ohio State University Extension Service to USDA Cooperative State Research, Education, and Extension Service in spring 2002 for a six-month special project to work on the 2002 Farm Bill.....and I never returned. In the five years since I’ve been here, I have met many fellow SAF members as I’ve traveled around the country to the land-grant universities, and I have met many of you through my work as well as through NCSAF activities. But I haven’t met nearly enough of you yet!

This is the occasion, I suppose, when you would expect me to describe my goals for the year. I am a bit reluctant to do that, only because I would hope that we have shared goals, and I don’t want to assume that I know what your NCSAF goals are. That said, however, I will do all I can this year:

- To ensure that NCSAF is relevant to you as a professional forester and that you consider your membership to be of value to you,
- To ensure that NCSAF is addressing the important issues that impact the profession of forestry and the nation’s forest resources, and
- To “set the table” for meaningful dialogue to occur across all of the various sectors of the forestry community. The only way we can advance our profession and the resources we are entrusted with is to listen and learn from each other, regardless of whether we agree.

One of the important issues for SAF in 2008 is the proposed purchase of Wild Acres by the Nation’s Academy. NCSAF has a special affinity for Wild Acres. We conduct the annual national phonathon there, organize landscape cleanups, and gather for social events and fellowship. In recent years, two of our members were married to each other at a ceremony at Wild Acres. The NCSAF Executive Committee is committed to establishing the appropriate communication channels with the national staff and the membership at large to provide perspectives regarding the location of the national office, what our paid staff has been able to accomplish by being located in the DC area, and what the grander aspirations for SAF might be.

A brief summary of the work your executive committee did at the annual planning meeting is contained elsewhere in this newsletter. We have much enthusiasm, creativity and commitment on the committee and we hope that our plans meet your expectations for your professional society. The work that we hope to accomplish in 2008 is made possible by the great leadership provided by last year's Chair, Wilhelmina Bratton, and the 2007 executive committee. We are indebted to them for providing us with a great launching pad for the coming 12 months.

Lastly, I have two requests of each of you:

1. Commit to participate in at least one NCSAF event this year – a monthly luncheon, the December holiday party, or any other activity. I think you will find it worth your time.
2. Don't be silent about the profession of forestry or the issues facing the nation's forest resources. Let me know your thoughts, opinions and suggestions. Call me at (202) 401-5971 or send me an e-mail at enorland@csrees.usda.gov

Best wishes for a healthy and prosperous 2008, and stay tuned!

2008 Executive Committee Goes to Work!

Your NCSAF Executive Committee started the New Year with its annual planning meeting at the SAF National Office on Saturday morning, January 12. Your elected officers and appointed committee chairs – 19 members – spent four hours making plans for 2008. If we complete even half of what we discussed, we believe that NCSAF will have a great year! Among the many items discussed and planned include:

- Continuing our monthly luncheon programs. We will seek interesting and knowledgeable speakers from throughout the forestry community – agencies, environmental NGO's, the forest industry, and others. We believe that is important and necessary to know, understand, and appreciate the varying perspectives and agendas that exist. NCSAF members need to know what others are doing and saying.
- Placing an emphasis on identifying, recruiting, and involving young professionals in NCSAF. There are many forestry interns through the DC area, as well as young professionals in many sectors of the forestry community in DC. They are the future of forestry and we need to cheer them on and assist however we can. Watch for programs and activities that will hopefully attract and enable the next generation of forestry professionals to be active NCSAF members.
- As opportunities present themselves, we will work with the national forest policy director and committee to do important Congressional outreach. Not a week or month goes by in which the national staff is involved in some aspect of Congress' work. There is an important role for NCSAF in these efforts. When we see an opportunity for NCSAF to make a contribution, we will take it.

- 2008 will mark the first year of electronic balloting for national and society officers. NCSAF will utilize the electronic balloting process that has been developed by the national staff.
- NCSAF will participate in Capital Science on March 29-30 in Arlington, VA. See the article on this elsewhere in the newsletter. It represents a great opportunity for NCSAF members to engage with and benefit from the work of other science societies.
- A renewed commitment to do the very best we can with regard to communicating with our members. We will maintain the website (www.ncsaf.org), send monthly newsletters containing timely information and updates about NCSAF happenings, and notify members by e-mail of upcoming events or breaking news.
- We will honor several members who will achieve 50 and 60 years of membership in 2008, as well as many who will receive “decade” pins for their years of membership.
- The Executive Committee will work with the national staff and council in ways to be appropriately involved in the pending sale of Wild Acres and the relocation of SAF. As the “state society” for the nation’s capital, we have the unique opportunity and responsibility to help members in NCSAF and beyond to understand the unique benefit of having the national office located in the DC area.
- We will continue our project of service to the entire Society of American Foresters by conducting the National Phonathon for three evenings in May. More details on this will be forthcoming.

All of this, and more, bode well for a great year in 2008. Most of the work of NCSAF is done by the members of the Executive Committee. They are listed in the Leadership Team roster in this newsletter. When you see them, I encourage you to say “Thanks for what you contribute to NCSAF!”

The Washington Academy of Sciences & Its Affiliates
Present CAPITAL SCIENCE 2008
NSF Conference Facility, Arlington, VA - March 29-30, 2008

On Saturday and Sunday, March 29-30, 2008, The Washington Academy of Sciences (WAS) and its Affiliated Societies will hold the third in a series of biennial pan-Affiliate Conferences, Capital Science 2008 (CapSci-08). It will be held in the Conference Facility of the National Science Foundation in Arlington, VA at the Ballston Metro stop. With more than 20 of WAS Affiliates participating, the Conference will serve as an umbrella for scientific presentations, seminars, tutorials, and talks. These pan-Affiliate Conferences underline the fact that the Washington, DC area is not only the political capital of the country but, in many respects, the nation's intellectual capital -- with several major universities and government laboratories that are the homes of an astonishing number of Nobel laureates.

The Conference has scheduled several national and world-renowned plenary and keynote speakers on the following topics:

- International polar research
- Public outreach and space telescope science
- Tissue ownership, ethics, legal and policy considerations

- National cancer research
- Science and engineering in the courtroom: ethics and the expert witness

Additional information – including Conference highlights, a list of participating societies, schedule of presentations, abstracts of talks, fees, registration information and instructions for presenters are available at: <http://www.washacadsci.org/capsci08/Index.htm> .

The NCSAF plans to host sessions at CapSci-08. In a few days, you will receive an E-mail Call for Participation for our NCSAF events. There are several topics in forest science that would be of strong interest to many of the other affiliated societies at the conference, as well as to our own members in the national capital area. I urge NCSAF members to attend the conference and take this biennial opportunity to connect with and represent forest sciences in the greater science community.

Please feel free to contact me if you have questions on this event or would like to participate in either of the NCSAF sessions as a speaker or panelist. The policy of WAS, for CapSci events, is that all submissions for papers, speakers or panelists must go through an affiliated society representative.

Any questions, please contact Denise Ingram at cdingram@fs.fed.us or (202) 205-3611.
